USE OF COOKIES AND ACTIVITY FILES

The service provider may, directly or through a third party engaged to provide measuring services, use cookies when users browse the website. Cookies are small files sent to the browser by a web server to record the user's activity while browsing.

The cookies used by the website are only associated with anonymous users and their computers and do not provide users' personal details.

Cookies enable the web server to recognise the web browser used by the user in order to simplify browsing. It may, for example, allow users who have previously registered to access areas, services, promotions or competitions reserved exclusively for registered users without having to register every time they visit the site. They are also used to measure audience and traffic parameters, monitor progress and number of entries.

Users may set up their browser to be notified of the receipt of cookies and prevent their installation on their computers. Please consult the instructions and manuals of your browser for further information.

Users may use the website without allowing the installation of cookies sent by the website, or the third party acting on its behalf. Acceptance of cookies will, however, be necessary if the user opens a session as such in any of the services requiring prior registration or login.

IP ADDRESSES

The web servers may automatically detect the IP address and domain name of a given user. An IP address is a number automatically assigned to a computer when it connects to Internet. All this information is recorded in a duly registered server activity file. Through subsequent processing of the data, purely statistical measurements are obtained, indicating the number of page impressions, the number of visits made to the web services, the order of visits, the point of access, etc.

SECURITY

The website uses data security techniques generally accepted in the industry, such as firewalls, access control procedures and cryptographic mechanisms, to prevent any unauthorised access to data. In order to achieve this, users/customers must allow the service provider to obtain certain data for authentication of the access control.

All contracting procedures entailing the input of sensitive personal data (health, ideology, etc.) will always be transmitted through a secure communication protocol (<https://...>) to prevent any access by third parties to the information provided online.
